Finns have been experiencing unpleasant confusion over the the past few weeks. Particularly in the eastern part of Finland, in North Karelian region people have observed noisy, small-sized green beings. Nobody knows about the origin of the beings, but some have suspected them to be related to spying by Zimbabwe or North Korea. Others believe that the beings have crossed the border and escaped from Russia's Alien Species Research Center. It is not known whether the creatures, called "greenies" by citizens, are dangerous

Citizens are frustrated and require actions by the government. However, the Finnish government is unwilling to take responsibility for the matter: "We can not do anything about the issue since supernatural phenomena are not regulated by law. And we are not interested in the well-being of people, the most important thing now is the economic growth," commented government's representative Julius Goldfish.
