INSIGHT

49 % of Finns think they encounter untrue news weekly<sup>1</sup>. A substantial part of false news is related to wellbeing, healthy diet and food products.

Misinformation spreads rapidly in online media because anyone can publish and share content.

Additionally, false news spreads more than the truth because humans, not robots, are more likely to spread it<sup>2</sup>.

False news and misinformation spread like wildfire.

This has led to a situation where especially young Finns feel it is difficult to find, evaluate and understand information related to healthy diet and well-being<sup>3</sup>. This can be highly detrimental to one's health, if the he/she makes food choices based on misinformation. K Group's mission is to create welfare responsibly for all society.

Through the campaign CHEW BEFORE YOU SWALLOW, K Group aims to raise people's interest towards fact-based information.

For K Group, CSR is actions. Therefore, K Group will build a AI-powered chatbot, which will help Facebook users to check the authenticity of news.

Facebook users can check the authenticity of wellbeingrelated news by entering the URL of the news they would like to check.
